750 MILLILITERS

CIRRUS, a semi-sweet white wine, touts delicate fruit flavors with a subtle finish. This wine carries the same name as the thin, wispy clouds that hang in the sky on clear days. Clearly, Baltimore Bend Vineyard's winemaker—who's had a lifetime love affair with the weather—had a hand in naming this wine. From his "man against the elements" statement to his harvest forecast of "the back edge of the storm should be pushing through any time," Richard Livingston combines weather prognostication with growing grapes and making wine. Enjoy.
